DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restriction

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-8, drawn to a method of producing antimicrobial protein, comprising:
a) expressing as a fusion protein, by combining a basic antimicrobial protein A with a partner protein B by culturing a prokaryotic cell transformed with DNA encoding the fusion protein, b) recovering the fusion protein and c) separating the antimicrobial protein A from the partner protein B and modifying the antimicrobial protein A by utilizing the function of the partner protein B;
Classified in class 435, subclass 69.1, 252.3; class 536, subclass 23.5.
Should Group I be elected, applicants are required to select an antimicrobial protein A from claim 3.
- II. Claims 9-19, drawn to a fusion protein comprising combining a basic antimicrobial protein A having a predetermined mode of an intramolecular disulfide bond as an active type and a partner protein B having an isoelectric point below pH 7 and a chaperon function; Classified in class 530, subclass 350.
Should Group II be elected, applicants are required to select an antimicrobial protein A from claim 13 and a partner protein B from claim 14.
- III. Claim 20, drawn to a nucleic acid, encoding the fusion protein of claim 1;
Classified in class 536, subclass 23.5.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case, the product, the protein of group II can be made using an amino acid synthesizer.

Inventions I and III are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the claimed nucleic acid of III can be used in a materially different process such as for the hybridization assay. Therefore, the inventions are distinct.

The protein of invention II and nucleic acid of invention III is related to by virtue of the fact that the DNA codes for the protein. The DNA molecule has utility for the recombinant production of the protein in a host cell. Although the DNA and the protein are related, since the DNA encodes the specifically claimed protein, they are distinct inventions because the protein product can be made by other and materially distinct processes, such as purification from the natural source. Further, DNA can be used for processes other than the production of protein, such as nucleic acid hybridization assays. Therefore, the inventions are distinct.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a diligently filed petition under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(h).

Applicant is advised that the response to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

A telephone call was made to Attorney Daniel Pereira on May 8, 2003 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.
